TAFT APPROVES LOCK TYPE CANAL

Engineer's Report Incomplete, but It Will Approve Gatun Dam and the Entire Canal Plan.

SPEAKS IN NEW ORLEANS

Tells People Canal Will Be Completed in 1915—Entrance Into City Picturesque, Exception Most Cordial.

New Orleans, Feb. 11.—President elect Wm. H. Taft landed here shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon from Panama and was most enthusiastically received by the entire city, whose guest he is to be until Saturday morning.

Mr. Taft made a brief speech this afternoon in which he hinted very strongly at his present lock type of canal across the Panama isthmus.

He referred to current anticipations citizens make in fought ing tonight as a result of the unanimous action handed out at the Rhea of Obesity. Mr. Taft will be sixty years of age on Sept. 15, A., A. spend several hours in accomplishing and at night he the guest of honor at an elaborate banquet at which nearly 300 persons will be present. He will go later to participate in the Mardi Gras festivities and the president-elect will go to Charleston, three weeks on Monday, he will leave for Washington, reaching there on Friday, March 5th.

HOUSE OF RIMA'S TROUBLE.

Mr. Taft received the first news of the socialist convention here, which has been raised against the appointment as U. S. district attorney here by the president-elect when he was apprised, on his arrival here, of the fact that the majority of the delegates favored Gov. Kitch. That he was somewhat disturbed by the news there is no doubt was apparent, but early today he received the news of the appointment of Kitch and secured the cabinet minister from the south, by the governor secretary of state, and it was before the recent conference that Mr. Taft had his first chance to discuss matters of importance. He is also having a conference on the matter which will take place this evening at 7:30, with Senator Rives in Washington next week, his successor might be impossible to discuss the question for public reasons.

Cabinet Speculation Active.

Washington, Feb. 11.—Cabinet speculation became significant tonight as the result of the conference between President Taft and Senator Rives in New Orleans. Mr. Taft said he should submit to the senate at an early date the names of the members of his cabinet. It is understood that the latter have been practically agreed upon.

In this connection there was a rumor here today that H. H. Dickinson of Nashville, formerly general counsel for the Illinois Central Railroad, who was considered for the war portfolio, has been offered the secretaryship of war, a position he has declined.

Taft Will Not Be Idle.

Pinehurst, Ga., Feb. 11.—Mr. Taft will not be idle. He will be busy. He will be busy as a fine fiddler. He will be busy as one of the busiest men in the country. He will be busy as the busiest bee in the busiest hive in the busiest apiary on the busiest lot.

On the trip from Panama Mr. Taft made the first draft of his inaugural address. He will go over it with a few serious friends in Washington on his forthcoming visit next week.

Engineers' Report Incomplete.

Washington, Feb. 11.—The board of engineers to complete their report on the question of the type of canal to be built has been in session today for the first time since it was called, and the Washington visit by Mr. Taft and Secretary Bonaparte will go at once to Washington to consider their report. It may be assumed that their report will be a complete approval of the plans of the commission on the isthmus.

They will not only recommend the construction of the Gatun dam, but will recommend the type of dam that will be the perfected type of built to a height of 85 feet above sea level, with the spillway system as contemplated.

Other features of their report will deal with the width of the canal, which is agreed for the width and floors of the locks, and the depth of the canal, and the locks and the approval of the $10,000,000 breakwater at the Atlantic terminus of which will create a harbor of refuge for vessels in stormy weather.

The failure of the engineers to consider their report today and the call of the director for careful consideration regarding it, is taken to mean that the board will not disband, rather than may disagree, but is expected to submit their report unanimously.

Likes Work at Panama.

In his speech at the banquet of the civil bar here, Mr. Taft made what he said was his second visit to the Panama canal.

I am here on my way from the great construction work," he said after paying his compliments to his fellowmen. "The greatest national quality my nation during the past two centuries, and I am glad to say to you, as perhaps you were interested in the work of digging the canal, that the people of the United States, that the people of the whole country, are behind it to do. That is the key of America's pulse, at least, if not before—and I've

"BLUE" LATURA FREED OF A MURDER CHARGE

Is Held, However, to Answer Other Charges of Murder and Murderous Assault—Is Paroled.

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 11.—Holding that he is insane the jury in the case of William (Bill) Latura, charged with murder in connection with the killing of Charles Miller, one of four negroes who were shot to death by Latura several months ago, today returned a verdict of acquittal. Latura was returned to the county jail to await trial on four other charges charging murder and murderous assault.

After the jury had rendered its verdict Latura was brought into court and quickly submitted to arrest.

The case has been on trial continuously since January 5, nearly three weeks having been consumed in getting a jury. It being necessary to examine more than 1,000 veniremen before the panel was completed—an item of interest to the taxpayers of Shelby county.

Latura was brought to Memphis from Memphis from the county jail to the courthouse, under a heavy guard of deputy sheriffs, and was taken to the courthouse for the purpose of hearing the verdict of the jury. He was not handcuffed when he was arrested, but was handcuffed to a deputy sheriff when he was brought into court.

The testimony being examined, there was no outbreak, but a large crowd in the court yard, showing that they no doubt had expected a verdict and demanded to be returned to their home in the custody of the law. Latura was then and some to participate in the trial.

For a time there was great excitement in the court room, and a number of persons were forcibly ejected by order of the permanent court, and the bailiffs of the court, assisted by a number of the Guards, were summoned. They succeeded in restoring order without trouble, so on the ground that "persons was not to be tried in the court room."

"More than you have in your whole state," said Mr. Gallinger, turning to Mr. Bailey.

"I would not imagine so," retorted Mr. Bailey, "for I am sure you have recorded the work of many more persons than I have in my state. I am sure that I was unpathomatory to refer to over and a quarter of a million.

"I want the stenographer to record that Mr. Bailey of Texas interrupted me."

"I stand by what I said," interjected Mr. Cook.

"I will be stood by what I said," said Mr. Mason hotly replied.

The Senate bill was materially amended, the bill was passed and the conference was ordered.

Mr. Rives Uniformly Loses.

State uniformity laws are now on the statute books of Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, North Carolina, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah and Virginia.

The commissioners of the uniform legislation, which has secured uniformity of laws in the states mentioned, will meet immediately after the war by Congress, and will endeavor to secure the possibilities of grant through the use of the text book privileges to prevent pirating. After the reign of the "Blue Grass" Senator Rives, the Democratic chairman, the uniformity laws were repealed in the states of Kentucky and uniformity was soon found in the Mississippi valley.

Uniformity Laws Are Repealed.

The state of California were the first to repeal the uniformity laws, and not only for state uniformity, but undertook to repeal the uniformity laws of the school books, with the idea of selling their own books to the state. It is said, however, no other state has tried this plan, and the laws of the state are proceeding before the General Assembly of California for consideration. The state printing establishment in Arkansas is also under consideration, and it is said the state superintendent of public instruction will be asked to veto the bill. It is said that the publishing houses, the authors and others who have much to lose financially in the uniform text book laws, failure in California.

The state of Arkansas has been under uniform text book laws for several years, and it is said that the people are beginning to object to them as the general market that they have been established in the state now issues plates from regular text book publishing houses. It is said regularly on each book under it is required that the name of the author of the books are to be given on the books and the state charged for the books. It is said that the state has been paying for the books at the uniform dollars which it has invested in the printing plates.

Indians Fixes Maximum Price.

In the state of Indiana, which is one of the North of Kent which has eight of the best uniform text book laws, a penalty plan. Indiana passed the first uniform text book law in 1897, and the same series which should be charged for the books and that the price should not limit the books offered to the schools of the state. The publishers of the books, or books made for that state, are required to furnish, under the law, the books at a certain geographic to sold in Indiana at the lowest price at which the books is explained by the fact that the publishers have made the plates while apparently the same book that they have been charging for the plates than the book sold here. In other states the publishers have made no concessions price for the books sold in Indiana. The publishers will therefore be compelled to meet the Indiana price and quality of the books offered that in the state of Indiana.

Missouri Abandons Uniformity.

Missouri was the first state to have establishing state uniformity in 1897 and in 1903 the law was repealed. In 1903 the letter act was repealed and the county Boards of Education were again under the general statutes, the state uniformity law of 1897 was repealed. In 1903 a law was passed specifically placing the authority to contract for uniform books in the County Boards of Education, or, where no such boards exist, with the county superintendent and two teachers, appointed by the county court and the letter by the State Board of Education. Under this law Missouri now has uni-

EDITORS DECIDE ON FORT SMITH

Will Hold State Meeting There in May and Then Take Jaunt Over the State in a Special Train.

The spring meeting of the Arkansas Press Association was held in the Supreme Court room at the state house yesterday. About 30 members were present, and the meeting was a very warm one. The meeting was held in executive session, and the question of where the next meeting is to be held at first made a stir.

There were several cities that the association are interested. One is there asked for because of a tradition set in motion all state banks to publish quarterly statements similar to those of national banks. Another asked about a bill to be introduced in the legislature providing that all state printing be done by the state printer, and that no newspaper in each county in the state shall be allowed to do any printing unless he secures it. The newspapers are back of the measure. Bill No. 174 was passed and the legislature was asked to kill it.

The association held a short meeting this morning and decided to meet at Fort Smith.

Fort Smith Meeting Plans.

The selection of Fort Smith as the place for holding the annual meeting was almost unanimous. Upon motion of Col. editor of the Ozan Standard, and Paul H. Cravens, editor of the Fort Smith Times-Record, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That the Arkansas Press Association in session at Little Rock this 11th day of February, 1909, hereby extends to the citizens of Fort Smith, Arkansas, its cordial thanks for the invitation to hold its next annual meeting in that city, and the assurance of the hearty co-operation of the members of the press in making the meeting a success.

DONAGHEY FAVORS NEW COMMISSION

Governor Says All Those Connected With New State House Should Be Discharged and State Take Charge.

SAYS CONTRACT IS TENTATIVE

Thinks Building Can Be Completed Within 12 Months by His Plan—Says $1,000,000 Would Be Saved.

Governor George W. Donaghey would say on a convenient hour of the forenoon of Gazettedom, thoroughly acquainted to perform the duties of the position, for the purpose of discussing the work on the new state house. This statement is contained in a special message sent to the Senate yesterday in which the governor urges the passage of a bill abolishing the present building commission of the governor for the completion of the building. He states also that the members of this board have been connected with the work in the state long enough to be discharged, he proposes to ask that he be authorized to appoint his successors, of which he would be an ex-officio member.

Might Interest in Senate.

Governor Donaghey's message sent to the Senate yesterday was the cause of considerable popular discussion on the streets and in the lobbies of the state capitol during the forenoon. It was generally known that the governor would send a message to the Senate, but what the message would contain was a matter of conjecture. The governor's message was read to the Senate yesterday in the afternoon session and was as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

"I do not wish to deprive the contractors of the new capitol building of any profit that they have earned, but I have realized the duty of submission to arbitration in Judges Campbell and Drake, and I am willing to abide by their decision. In Lincoln Had Lived.

"If Lincoln Had Lived" was the subject of a centenary address delivered at Philadelphia by John W. Forney, of that city, who was a member of the "California regiment," the first of the Pennsylvania line, before W. L. Curry Post, No. 18, Grand Army of the Republic.

Mr. Forney said that if Abraham Lincoln had lived the fatal four years of his second term, instead of about four weeks only, there would never have been written into the political melody of the United States that term "reconstruction of the seceded states," created by Thaddeus Stevens, Edwin M. Stanton, Charles Sumner and Ben Wade; that there would have been no "carpet bag governments" in eleven of the Southern states.

In his inaugural address, on March 4, 1865, Mr. Lincoln said:

"Apprehension seems to exist among the people of the Southern states, that by the accession of a Republican administration their property and their peace and personal security are to be endangered. There has never been any reasonable cause for such apprehension indeed, the most ample guarantees to the contrary have all the while existed and been free to every one who has candidly considered the subject. Those apprehensions proceed from the want of a correct knowledge of the opinions, purposes and principles of the administration. I therefore consider it proper to say it will be my purpose, then, as far as practicable to be guided by the constitution and the laws, and that, he probably will have no different guide. According of the powers and duties of the executive as prescribed in the constitution itself, and the powers and duties over the constitution that has supposed to be delegated address. He desires to preserve the government, that it may be transmitted to all, as it was received by the men who made it."

This extract, made by Congressman Denby, of Indiana, in a speech in December 9, 1863, President Lincoln read a proclamation saying that if any of the seceded states would re-establish a state government, republican in form, it should be recognized as the true government of the state, and "the state shall renew and reinstate the loyal state of the constitutional provision which declares that the United States shall guarantee to every state in this Union a republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion and domestic violence." Of course such a state government could be formed only by persons who would take the oath and obey laws. This proclamation said further:

"And it is suggested as not improper, that, in constructing the new state government in any state, the name of the state, the boundary, the subdivisions, the constitution, and the general code of laws, as before the rebellion, be maintained, subject only to the modifications hereinbefore stated, and such others, if any, as may be consistent with circumstances and which may be deemed expedient by those framing the new state government."

"The reconstruction proposed in reference to the people of the seceded states was that they should reorganize their governments, and adjust state governments here, were subjected, while in and by the national authority and loyal state governments may be re-established within the said states, or in any of them. And while the mode presented is the best the executive can suggest with his present impressions, it must not be understood that no other mode can possibly be acceptable."

In his speech he made on April 14, 1865, President Lincoln said:

"We all agree that the seceded states, so called, are out of their proper relation; that they have suffered terribly, and that the sole object of the government, civil and military, now existing over them, is to again get them into their practical relation. I believe it is not only possible, but in fact, easier, to do this with them than to treat them as criminals, and keep them so for a long time. Finding themselves safe in the Union, would be slower to attempt anything to break it than outsiders would. Let us all join in doing the very best way to restore the proper practical relations between these states and the union, and each forever after inasmuch as any question whether it is not easier to do the new be brought the states from without into the Union, or only cure them proper patronage, they never having been out of it.

After practicing his case this Philadelphia speaker said that by a strange fatality, that policy of christianity, patriotism, statesmanship and, withal, American honor, was entopped by that band of the assassin, John Wilkes Booth, and the policy of Malice toward none, of charity toward all," was quickly suppressed by the reign of the corpet bagger.

Perhaps matters would not have gone along quite so swimmingly for the South, if Lincoln had lived, as might be surmised from a reading of President Lincoln's utterances; for doubtless many things would have come up that were not foreseen. But we believe there can be no doubt that the South would have been infinitely better off with Lincoln in the White House for nearly four years after Appomattox. We feel sure that his soul was above malice and that in the statesmanship was also constructive and not destructive, his vision triumphant and his plans practicable and business-like.

THE SORT OF SOUP IT WAS.

The man at the saloon lunch counter watched the supper-seeker eat his soup and then he asked: "How do you like it?" says the New York Sun. He looked expectantly from one face to another, waiting for some one to say something as a matter of course.

Each of the men carried a glass of beer and was ready to say that the soup tasted was to get some lunch. The smartest of the lot, the one who had been there before and knew the ropes, looked at the soup and then asked anxiously: "What kind of soup is it, Jim?"

Then he grinned and smiled upon his friends, pleased to have such a question to carry many jests.

The man behind, surveying the small lunch with eager mingled with contempt, said: "It's the sort of soup that you can't tell what it is by looking at it."

National Chauffeurs Meet Today

Schools Have Been Established to Teach Auto Drivers—Both Theory and Practice Are Included in the Instruction—Some Places Chauffeur Must Pass Examination for License—Feminine Chauffeur May Be Good or Bad.

(Correspondence of the Gazette)

Washington, Feb. 11.—The National Chauffeurs' Association will hold its regular meeting in the Capital City. Thirty have been other national gather ings, but this meeting seems to have taken on a character, in the past, but not until within the last few years has the organization had the prominence it now has. The first professional chauffeurs of America, was organized in New York in 1904, but was limited in membership.

The chauffeur and his profession is the latest development within a decade. There have many thousands of the professionals all over the globe. They are exploring the four corners of the earth. Schools Are Established.

The success of these automobile schools was the establishment of schools and the requirement that chauffeurs must pass examinations to be trusted to become professional drivers. There are now in the United States over 1,000 schools in a limited extent—whichever they may be called. The first school of this kind probably established on New York City. Los Angeles, there are two schools, and there are probably a dozen more in the United States in which the science of driving and handling automobiles is taught. The number of graduate chauffeurs of these schools is not great, but it is increasing rapidly.

The Young Men's Christian Association has been very far also in the matter of new is concerned, has added the automobile department to its educational branch. One of the leading schools of this kind is that of the Y. M. C. A. at Boston, Mass., and the Y. M. C. A. at Washington, D. C.

Most of the automobile schools have very comprehensive courses of instruction. The course varies in length from six weeks to three months, but the latter length of the period and the degree of proficiency with which it is given. Most of the schools have three classes during the year, and the instruction is given by day and by night. The average number of pupils in each class of instruction is regarded as ten or twelve, though there is often more. The plan of instruction usually follows that of the Y. M. C. A. schools, with the mechanical features of the automobile as a central idea. The theory is followed by practical work. An instructor lectures to the class on the construction of the automobile and a small engine model is placed in the hands of each pupil. Under the direction of the working model is told to take apart an axle and put it together again.

Gets Practical Schooling.

After the pupil is well grounded in the mechanical principles of the automobile he is put to work in the shop. A branch of the instruction is carried out in the garage, where the pupil learns how to handle a paid car, learns perfectly well how to run it, and learns how to keep the machine in order. In the back wheels of a car are placed of different speeds, but not to be delivered on the day of the sale that Waters rubbin, the rest shows kind, but not to be delivered on the day of the sale.

Sir Thomas is a great admirer of boy scouts, and has been known to say that he would rather be a boy scout than a king.

Another section of instruction will be given to the pupil after he has learned well the theory and practical work of the automobile. He will be required to take a chauffeur's examination. Many of the schools have this examination in charge, and the pupil who passes it is given a certificate of graduation. Some of the schools have a paid examination, and the pupil who passes it is given a certificate of graduation. Some of the schools have a paid examination, and the pupil who passes it is given a certificate of graduation.

The rules in schools give diplomas and many of them have established a system of aiding graduates and of places to be filled. Many of the schools have agencies for these graduates. Oil and gasoline companies are also looking for people as all walks of life, willing to learn the business, and the chauffeur school is a good place to look. It is the recently established agencies for the sale of automobiles and the establishment of these schools is taking place at the same time. The demand for these graduates are just as enthusiastic and the supply is equally as great as it is likely even when working through the schools.

Legal restrictions surround the chauffeur. He must not be drunk. He must not be dead. Under many jurisdictions he must not be intoxicated. He must not be intoxicated. He must not be intoxicated. He

TO USE ALL-STEEL PASSENGER CARS

Rock Island Trains Lead in Ordering New Style of Construction in Building Through Service Equipment.

After a careful investigation of the all-steel passenger car built separately, the management of the Rock Island Lines has decided to use this type of car in the construction of high-speed through service equipment to be operated between Memphis and Houston. The Rock Island Company has already contracted for 30 all-steel cars for service on the through trains of the Memphis line.

Delivery of these cars will begin on or about May 1, and it is the plan of the system to have the entire equipment in service by June 1. Following the adoption of the all-steel car through trains will be put on and will be extended to the remainder of the Rock Island lines.

Other Western roads have been experimenting with all-steel cars for the past several years.

HOW I MADE MY HAIR GROW

Woman Will Marvelously Beautiful Hair Gives Simple Home Prescription Which She Used With Most Astonishing Results.

I was greatly troubled with dandruff and falling hair. I tried many remedies and hair preparations and various prescriptions, but my hair kept falling, falling, many of them made my hair greasy so that it resembled a wet mop or dry it up terribly. I think that I tried all the hair tonics and hair dressings that were sent from top point to point. I became fearful for strongly resisting hair, and I was rapidly approaching a feeling would shrivel and other poisonous substances, to destroy the life and roots of the hair. After my long list of failures I finally found a simple prescription, which I used with most remarkable success, and I can enthusiastically state that in a beyond doubt the best remedy for the hair in existence. Since my own hair is one of my friends I am glad to tell them of it, and also for all others whose hair is going, and to powerful stimulant to the growth of the hair, and for restoring gray hair to its natural color, but it is equally good for preventing dandruff, for all hair life and brilliancy, etc., and for the purpose of keeping the hair soft, from this condition; it also makes the hair unusually easy to comb and arrange in nice form. I have a friend who has a little girl whose hair was coming out in such a way that the falling of the hair and wonderfully increased its growth, but it practically saved the little girl's hair to its natural color. You can obtain the ingredients for making this wonderful preparation from almost any druggist or general country store as follows:

Buy two, 2 ounces; Menthol crystals, 1-2 drachm; Lavoris de Compound, 2 ounces; De Kalbo Capsicum, 1-2 ounce.

Apply night and morning; rub thoroughly into the scalp.

Go to your druggist and ask for an eight-ounce bottle containing six ounces of bay rum; also one-half drachm of Menthol crystals, and for a two-ounce bottle of Lavoris de Compound. Mix the ingredients yourself at your own home. Add the Menthol crystals to the bay rum and then pour Lavoris de Compound, and add the 70 Kalbo per-fume. Let it stand for one half hour and it is ready for use.

COUNTY OPTION LAW REPEALED

The Measure Is Compromise and Friends Believe It Will Pass Senate—Provides for Ward Option.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 11.—The Prohibition-Townsman county option repeal bill was passed by the indirect House of Representatives this afternoon.

The Hatcher bill, substituting township for county option, repeals the present option, and undertakes to be the Democratic administration's answer to the failure of a constitutional amendment.

The vote on the bill was 61 to 49.

Following Hot Debate.

The passage of the Hatcher compromise bill followed the hottest debate of the session. It was agreed upon as a compromise between the anti-Democratic majority of the house. Three days of conferences reconciliations however, who failed to agree on the bill. Four Republicans voted for it.

Champions of the Proctor-Tomlinson compromise bill express confidence that unity will still pass the Senate, which is controlled by the Republicans. A few Republican senators are said to favor the repeal of the county local option law, but they do not intend to make public their attitude on the Proctor-Tomlinson bill. Democratic house leaders say that the Hatcher bill will receive the support of a majority of the Democratic senators, and if possible, pass both bots to the Senate.

Provides for Ward Option.

The Proctor-Tomlinson bill which passed the house today provides for the incorporated town and city ward option election. It would enforce prohibition in cities and towns of 1,000 or more inhabitants. Saloons in townships and towns may vote on the question of local option at the regular election held by local agents. The bill increases the present license according to the class of city.

BROWN TO HEAR ELEVATOR CASE

Special Examiner Comes Instead of Interstate Commerce Commissioner Harlan to Take the Testimony.

George N. Brown, special examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission, arrived in Little Rock yesterday afternoon to take testimony in the rehearing of the case of the Brush-Beach Mill and Lumber Company against the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain Railroad to obtain a reduction in the rate on elevator stock to Alonzo B. Brown, now employed in the official force where the case would be heard but according to Judge Brown rather business engagements connecting with the meeting of the Interstate Commerce Commission rendered it impossible for Commissioner Harlan to hear the testimony at this time so will hereafter be heard by Special Examiner Brown on after and Tuesday and will also preside at the hearing of the case of Judge Rose, now directly from Wash-ington to Little Rock.

The case is one against the railroads, and Judge Brown has filed with the Commission a petition asking certain powers and limits of the railroads in this matter. It is said the majority of the railroads are willing to make the reduction in the rate asked and recommended by the findings of the examiner heard. There has been no decision in the case as yet and the railroads either were unable or did not care to divulge their reasons for the delay of a tendency toward harmony but at present the case is pending.

The seven members of the examination who are now in the city will leave on the train at present, according to Judge Brown, but the examiner will remain in the city for some days longer to hear the entire corps of examiners and stenographers will remain here.

OPERATORS OBJECT TO THE MINE RUN LAW

Authentic Mrs From Clarksville Offer Strong Opposition to Legislation Seen to Labor Committee of Senate.

In the Senate yesterday morning a petition from operators in the coal mines at Clarksville was read and then referred to the labor committee. Later, when the coal mining bills under consideration, the operators were on hand to protest against the mine-run law passed in 1905 and now in force. They will ask the Senate to appoint a committee to investigate the matter and report to the next session of the legislature.

Clarksville, Ark., Feb. 11 1909

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Arkansas:

We, the undersigned, citizens and tax-payers of Johnson county, Arkansas, respectfully petition the Legislature of the coming session of our constitutional body to submit an amendment to the Constitution of Arkansas, to be voted on by said county, and that the conditions of Arkansas may be changed to conform to the mine-run legislation, in such as to absent the present law.

We, the undersigned, citizens and tax-payers of Johnson county, Arkansas, further advise legislation and causes to be enacted by the Legislature of the coming session of our constitutional body to submit an amendment to the Constitution of Arkansas, to be voted on by said county, and that the conditions of Arkansas may be changed to conform to the mine-run legislation, in such as to absent the present law.

We, the undersigned, citizens and tax-payers of Johnson county, Arkansas, further advise legislation and causes to be enacted by the Legislature of the coming session of our constitutional body to submit an amendment to the Constitution of Arkansas, to be voted on by said county, and that the conditions of Arkansas may be changed to conform to the mine-run legislation, in such as to absent the present law.

The following are now in force under the sanction of the Mineral Trade and Labor Agreement, which is the law of the land, which includes state, city, check, and all other laws and ordinances to the contrary notwithstanding. The following are the rules of the Mineral Trade and Labor Agreement.

Rule 1. Abraham Lincoln Was Born One Hundred Years Ago Today

His Friendship for the South and His Respect for Southern Men

Abraham Lincoln, Born in Hardin County, Kentucky, Feb. 12, 1809. Died at Washington, April 15, 1865

tis Warner Wilhyde, Author of "The Boyhood Life of Abraham Lincoln," said:

Abraham Lincoln's grandfather came to Kentucky from Virginia with Daniel Boone, and is Kentucky—in the South —Abraham Lincoln himself was born. Col. Henry Watterson, today American's most famous Southern man of letters, in his splendid lecture on Abraham Lincoln, has this to say of the president's Southern connections:

"He was honored in South as much as He and all his traits were Southerners. Although he left Kentucky when a child, he was an old child; he never was very young and he grew to manhood in a Kentucky cabin; for when we Illinois in those days had a backwoods, rather, grown since somewhat out of proportion. He was in no sense what we in the South used to call "poor white trash." Without pretense, impolitic, perhaps, but acquiring the spirit of the people among whom he lived, with the air of a gentleman, indeed, born away down, the courage of a backwoodsman, and with no education and before he was of legal age, a practicing lawyer. The only boss was a Kentucky boss, his wife was a Todd."

Lincoln's Southern Friends.

Lincoln's first friend in Springfield, Illinois, Joshua F. Speed, was a Southerner. Speed became his bosom companion. They slept under the same blanket night after night. Their friendship was never broken. Mrs. Lincoln was a Southern woman, born in Kentucky, and related, to visit Speed in Louisville. After the Lincoln and Mary Todd were married they often returned to the "old Kentucky home." Lincoln was connected by marriage with John C. Breckinridge, also the gentle-hearted, and of whose he often took occasion to say he was "my friend."

In fact, while a member of Congress Lincoln made his first speech in favor of Southern rights.

Says Williams: I take up my pen to tell you that Mr. Lincoln was a conservative, not a radical. He was sympathetic and a friend of the Southern people. His first speech, of the House of Representatives, was a plea for the old, withered, dry eyes (Lincoln was then 37) and the young alike.

That wonderful speech of a mere boy, delivered in the House of Congress, was a masterful effort, and was never forgotten, though, in the strange vicissitudes of time, it was overlooked by some president of the United States, and the editor of every president of the Southern Confederacy.

In the midst of the storm of conflicting "views and rumors of wars" Abraham Lincoln was elected president. Although the short, strong voice of secession was heard in the land, Lincoln, in his inaugural address, declared that he had no purpose to disturb the institutions of the South, but only to enforce the laws of the United States.

Says Williams: Lincoln was not for war. He was for peace. He was for the Union. He was for the Constitution. He was for the laws. He was for the rights of the South. He was for the rights of the North. He was for the rights of the whole people. He was for the rights of the whole people. He was for the rights of the whole people

COTTON MARKET HAS SUPPORT

Trading Was Nervous and Unsettled, However, With Close Barely Steady—Southern Spot Unchanged.

New York, Feb. 11.—The cotton market's calls a good deal of support today, but confined covering and unsettled with the close barely steady, at a decline of 2 to 4 points on the active months and 5 points on the distant months.

The market opened steady, at a decline of 1 to 2 points with the active months selling 2 to 3 points lower and right after the call, owing to disappointing outlook in Manchester, local bear pressure and the decline to 9.66 for July and 9.55 for October. Later, further bearish influences, for the account of some of the large spot houses, caused a further decline to 9.62 for July. These disposals checked the downward movement and during the middle of the day prices held in a narrow and irregular, with no marked selection from moving operations. Cotton on the spot was unchanged, selling in lots of shipments here from the interior and in lots of 100 to 200 bales for consumption. Reports of the condition of the local bear position of cotton and the amount of the short interest. The close was steady at 2 points net lower.

Cotton futures quickly reflected reports of a more cheerful feeling in Manchester. The report of the National Ginners' Association placing the ginning of cotton ginned to February 4 and their report of the number of bales ginned to that date as 5,210,000 bales, including 153,000 bales of linters, together with confirmation of the report that the Southern crop may have reached the 10th after the ever, caused a sharp rally in the market. The New York spot market was also of good importance, especially for Southern, as the Southern crop movement at the interior will be quite moderate in comparison with the movement of the past few weeks. The New York spot sales were 50,500 bales last year. For the week the sales were 300,000 bales, as against 300,000 bales last year. The port receipts were 20,000 bales, as against 30,000 bales last year. For the week the receipts were 100,000 bales, as against 100,000 bales last year. The stock at the interior towns was 1,000,000 bales, as against 1,000,000 bales last year. The stock at Liverpool was 1,000,000 bales, as against 1,000,000 bales last year. The stock at Liverpool was 1,000,000 bales, as against 1,000,000 bales last year. The stock at Liverpool was 1,000,000 bales, as against 1,000,000 bales last year.

NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, Feb. 11.—Cotton—Steady, 1-16 advance; sales 3,000; receipts 7,000; low middling 10; middling 10 1-16; good middling 10 5-16; strict middling 10 7-16; receipts, 4,000 bales; stock 98,295 bales.

Futures opened steady at a decline of 1 to 2 points on disappointing cables, but rallied on the covering of shorts and better reports from the interior and Manchester. On this movement prices were easy to 4 points net lower, and remained so during the afternoon session, hence the close was steady at the lowest figures of the day, with sales reported at 1,000 bales. Prices closed steady:

Grain

Chicago, Feb. 11.—Wheat for May declined 1 cent per bushel at 11:30 p. m. Monday, the highest point touched since the corresponding hour on Jan. 18th. All of the advance was held and the market closed strong at the top. The bulk of sales for the day of 3,000,000 bu. Corn closed easy at 1-2c net decline for the day.

Oats also to be traditional purchases by Armour, but the announcement should strengthen the feeling. Provisions were weak throughout the day, regarding the decline duty, regarding the fact of packers already advancing to the highest point recorded in more than three years. Hogs were 10c higher at the yards today, but the decline did not help materially in an advance in Liverpool or Chicago. The latter market declined 2½c per pound at moderate tolerance. With the exception of the May option, which was strong, the day did not differ from the opening level, demand being only moderate. Cables were weak and prices 1-2d lower. Hogs were also weak in sympathy with the continuation of the bearish feeling in provisions. Corn was dull and weak in the country. A fresh break in the price of oats was the feature of the day. Prices at 8:15, when the market closed at the close.

The feeling in the wheat had no effect on the corn market, which was inclined to be weak.

Chicago, Feb. 11.—Local longs had a weakening effect on the corn market, but a good cash demand helped throughout the day.

Receipts selling by local packers, prevented any further decline and all day sellers, but no shorts, who were actuated by the bearish feeling in wheat, were in the market. The close was steady at 1-2c net decline for the day.
